Rosaline McGrath of Newton avenue was the second witness and she testified hat on the 21st of August she deposited 165 for her mother. She said she saw Handleman at one of the windows in the bank at about 1.30 on that day. She also testified that she saw two other men who were ahead of her at the receiving celler's cage and that one of the men bill in his hand and during this time Handleman was engaged in talking with one of the other employes of the bank. She says that after the alleged theft had taken place she recognized Handleman on High street a distance of about two hundred feet north of the bank. Miss McGrath testified that she also saw two other men who are alleged to have taken the money and the ones with whom Handleman is alleged to have acted. On cross-examination Mis McGrath admitted that the deposit silp shown her en the witness stand might not have been the one which was made out at the bank that day, as she did not make out the slip personally, but Miss Dorcas Williams, who was employed at the bank at the time made out the slip for her.

David Rebertson testified that he has been employed at the bank in different capacities for about eleven years. He Handleman having come to him on the day in question and inquired out a safety deposit box. Robertso said that the lady who ordinarily had charge of these matters was out to lunch and that he left his cage and went over to the cage which was occupied regularly by Miss Mable Cook, who had left to go to lunch. Mr. Robertson says that Handleman after having got some information from him at that time left the bank and said that he would return hear to the day and he did not be the control of the forward to the
